Historical Note

In 1987, federal legislation was passed to establish the Southwestern Pennsylvania Heritage Preservation Commission within the Department of Interior. This Commission coordinates what was then named America's Industrial Heritage Project (AIHP), a regional effort to preserve, promote, and interpret the sites and stories of America's industrial heritage in southwestern Pennsylvania with a special focus on the railroad, coal mining, and steel industries. Other transportation and heavy industries are included in the project's purview along with the impact of industry on agriculture and rural community life in the region and its social history and the influx of Eastern Europeans and southern African Americans who came to work in these industries and the role ethnicity has played and continues to play in shaping the region. AIHP encompasses Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Fayette, Fulton, Huntingdon, Indiana, Somerset and Westmoreland counties. The Commission serves as the catalyst for the project's partnership efforts and, through the conservation and commemoration of these industrial sites, the Commission will spark economic development in the region.

The Folklife Division of AIHP was developed by the Pennsylvania Heritage Affairs Commission in cooperation with the National Park Service and local cultural organizations. It was one of three teams of research specialists involved in documenting and interpreting various aspects of the industrial and ethnic heritage of the Allegheny Highlands. The other teams focused on the historic sites and archaeology of the region.

The Folklife Division was directed by James Abrams from 1989 to 1994. The Division's archivist was Susan Kalcik, who prepared a Folklife Resource Guide and this inventory under the direction of AIHP Archivist, Denise Visconti. Kathy Kimiecik joined the staff as Education Specialist and Danny Pfeilstucker worked with the Division on a labor project. The Division worked with local organizations, retired workers, community members, and trained historians, anthropologists, sociologists, and folklorists to document, present, and interpret the folklife of the region. By folklife is meant the social and cultural histories, as well as the on-going expressive practices that structure the experience and identity of groups within the region. The group may be a labor union, a work crew, an ethnic group, a religious order, a family, or people living in the same geographic location.

This work was carried on by the staff members listed above and during the summers of 1990 and 1991 by a number of professional and non-professional scholars who conducted cultural surveys of the 9 counties and worked on a number of special projects. In addition, several Folklife Documentation Centers were identified in regional institutions to conduct in-depth fieldwork on specific topics relevant to AIHP's mission, document folklife practices and practitioners, and develop public programs to present and interpret the results of their work. The Folklife Division Director worked closely with each center providing direction and technical assistance. These centers included at different times:

Scope and Content Note

This collection was created by the Folklife Division of the Southwestern Pennsylvania Heritage Preservation Commission. This collection consists of the records of the Southwestern Pennsylvania Heritage Preservation Commission's Division of Folklife and includes fieldwork materials collected by the Division and by some of the Documentation Centers as well as some administrative files.

Materials collected by the Folklife Division come from the 9 counties of Pennsylvania delineated as the America's Industrial Heritage area: Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Fayette, Fulton, Huntingdon, Indiana, Somerset and Westmoreland. The collection includes examples of a variety of folklife genres especially occupational, ethnic, religious, regional, gender, race and racism, and community lore; oral, life, and local history; arts and crafts; music, song, and dance; narrative; material culture such as vernacular architecture and foodways; customs, practices, and traditions; beliefs and values.

Subject matter includes the occupations of coal, steel, railroad, agriculture. Other subjects covered are immigration, ethnicity, race, class, discrimination, religion, organizations and institutions, work, labor, growing up, child rearing, men's and women's and children's roles, sports, games, entertainment, holiday celebrations, food, gardens, deindustrialization, displacement, heritage, and place. Many ethnic groups are mentioned, most often are Irish, German, Scotch Irish, Poles, Slovaks, Italians, Slovenians and African Americans.

Fieldworkers included folklorists, anthropologists, sociologists, historians, local scholars, community leaders, students, professional photographers. In general, the strongest collections were made by trained ethnographers. Some problematic areas include Burket's materials which could not be taped directly for the most part, Miner's recording logs which seem in some cases to have been typed by someone not familiar with the interviews, the Patton materials (see note below), the Harris and Moore photographs which have little or no documentation, and the narrow scope of the Coal Documentation Center collection.

Collected materials consist mainly of written materials, audio tape recordings, photographs, slides, video tape. In addition, fieldworkers sometimes acquired miscellaneous materials such as books, pamphlets, newspaper clippings, memorabilia, etc. These materials were collected in cultural surveys of the 9 counties, in work on specific projects, and as part of the work of the various documentation centers.

County Surveys

In 1990 and 1991 the Division conducted cultural or ethnographic surveys of the 9 counties to gather information that would be used later by AIHP in interpretive or public programs.

Their focus was on occupation and ethnicity. Fieldworkers were instructed to identify significant individuals in their counties, ethnic communities/culture/heritage, organizations (ethnic, rural, community, labor, religious), and to focus on the project's occupational interests: coal, steel, transportation, agriculture. Their work ideally began with some preliminary research; continued with fieldwork or field investigation that involved interviewing, participant observation, and photography; and ended with the writing of a final report. Interviews covered biography, sense of place, work and occupation, community life, artistic traditions and other subjects.

The survey report was to include background information on the county's climate, geography, industrial and agricultural economies, population, organizations, and ceremonial calendar. It also was to contain a list of contacts and significant organizations in the county, the fieldworker's preliminary research findings, and recommendations for further investigation. Survey fieldworkers were also asked to focus some attention on a special project or "case study" and these are reflected in the reports as well. Some fieldworkers only did special projects and did not survey the county as a whole. Fieldworkers were required to turn in fieldnotes, various logs, tapes, photographs and slides collected during fieldwork. They were not required to transcribe the tapes, although some logs and reports contain direct quotations from the interviews. These survey reports were not considered final polished or publishable documents but rather working papers. Time as well as travel constraints meant many have more breadth than depth. Those that have more depth tend to have focused on a narrower subject matter.

Bedford: 1991, Kimiecik, Santoro (good on agriculture) Blair: 1990, Swartz Cambria: 1990, Kalcik (good survey), Williams (focus on steel) Fayette: 1991, Dietrich (no report, fieldnotes good) Fulton: 1991, Day (good on music), Randall (good survey, and good on women) Huntingdon: 1991, McNitt Indiana: 1990, Dougherty (focus on coal) Somerset: 1990, Stephens Westmoreland: 1991, Darling (good survey, some on Jews and Catholics)

Special Projects

O'Reilly, 1990: music and crafts Baranik, 1990: coal management Belanus, 1990: ethnicity McNitt, 1990: East Broadtop Railroad Williams, 1990: steel Burket, 1991: Amish and Mennonites DiVirgilio, Keller, Shircliffe, 1990 and Keller, Brooks, 1991: Jeannette, PA and glass industry National Folk Festival, Kalcik, 1991 and 1992: foodways National Folk Festival 1991 and 1992: labor Kalcik 1991 and 1992: Catholic history and women religious

Oral History Institute in Patton-PA, 1992: This material was collected by students in the Institute and must be approached with the understanding that it is student work. The work is uneven, and suffers from a bias against mainstream Patton experience. Some individuals were interviewed by several different students. Particularly useful are Cahill's study of Prince Gallitzin Park and tourism in the area, Campbell on women in Patton, Luconi on Italians in politics, and Illig on Slovaks.

Documentation Centers

The approach and goals of fieldwork vary from center to center. The gender center is newer than the others and has collected less but focuses on its subject of women's role in the region. Particularly noteworthy are the agriculture and railroad collections; they represent ongoing, in-depth collecting in their subject areas. In a number of cases the same people have been interviewed over time and by different fieldworkers. The steel collection makes no attempt to survey that occupation, although some of the interviews do cover the subject. Instead it deals more with Johnstown-PA and ethnicity in general. The coal collection is built around the making of one video on coal and labor in Somerset County at the turn of the century.

Subjects

The following is a list of some subjects covered particularly well in the collection and where to locate materials on them:

1. African American: Stevens (Gender Documentation. Center), McNitt 1991
2. Agriculture: Kimiecik, Santoro, Greiner (Patton), Agriculture Documentation. Center
3. Aluminum: Mueseler and Billman (Gender Documentation. Center)
4. Altoona: Holland and others in Transportation Documentation. Center
5. Coal: Baranik, Dougherty 1990, Keener (Patton), Abrams, Coal Documentation Center
6. Education: Kimiecik written materials
7. Ethnicity: Kalcik, Steel Documentation. Center
8. Foodways: Kalcik, National Folk Festival
9. Glass/Jeannette-PA: Keller 1991-1992, Shircliffe, DiVirgilio, Brooks, Gender Documentation. Center
10. Italians: DiVirgilio, Luconi (Patton), Holland
11. Johnstown: Steel Documentation. Center
12. Labor: National Folk Festival, Keener (Patton), Dougherty, Coal Documentation Center
13. Music: O'Reilly, Day
14. Patton: Oral History Institute
15. Photographs: Moore and Harris
16. Railroad: O'Reilly, Belanus, Holland and McNitt et al at Transportation Documentation. Center
17. Religion: Kalcik, Darling, McNulty (Patton)
18. Slovaks: Kalcik, Illig and Rodgers (Patton)
19. Steel: Williams, Steel Documentation Center

Using the Collection

It is easiest to begin by reviewing the inventory of the written materials. Fieldnotes and logs indicate what the audio tapes and photographs will contain and in some cases, the quality. Record keeping for the collection generally focused around the identification number(s) given the audio tape(s) of an interview or of photographs or slides and these numbers will help the library staff locate the item you want to examine.

Fieldworkers did not always secure signed releases for materials. Although such materials are included in the collection, use of them must be discussed with the archivist. Restricted materials may not be used at all.

Series Descriptions

Series I: Written Materials*Subseries A: Folklife Division Fieldwork Materials

This series contains written materials prepared by various fieldworkers who conducted county surveys or special projects. There are a number of standard forms that were provided to fieldworkers and these include: recording log on which the fieldworkers indicates information about the audio tape recording of an interview, notes where on the tape information appears, and briefly outlines the subjects of the recording; photography log on which the fieldworkers indicates the photograph or slide number and its subject or information about a video tape; biographical data sheet which gives some basic information about the person interviewed or photographed; release form on which the informant gives permission to release the tape or image for use by AIHP and authorized scholars or places some limitations on its use. In addition, some documentation centers and fieldworkers developed their own forms or questionnaires, notably the Agricultural Documentation Center.

Other written fieldwork materials are fieldnotes which recorded a fieldworker's daily experiences and observations or detailed specific interviews and the reports that summed up the preliminary and field research. There are lists of contacts and organizations in this series and miscellaneous documents acquired during fieldwork such as newspaper clippings.

Series I: Written Materials*Subseries B: Folklife Division Administrative Materials

This series includes some of the records of the Folklife Division such as files kept on specific projects and on technical assistance the Division offered on applications for AIHP grant and loans programs. Contracts and other administrative papers for hiring fieldworkers is contained in this subseries as is Kimiecik's collection of information on folklife and education and some materials used by the Folklife Archivist to prepare this inventory.

Series I: Written Materials*Subseries C: Documentation Center Materials

Most of these materials are fieldwork related and similar to those described in Subseries A with the exception of the Coal Documentation Center which is a mix of materials related to fieldwork and the production of a video on coal and labor and a variety of miscellaneous subject and administrative files. Collection contains information on: Somerset County-PA, oral history of farming, agriculture, dairy farming, butter making, World War Two (WWII), Great Depression, butter, cheese, eggs, work by gender and age, quilting, Prohibition, milking equipment, farming equipment, equipment sales, Amish, candy making, Germans, horse farming, chickens, diseases, maple syrup, silos, silo fillings, threshing, foodways, pets, gardens, vegetables, crops, flowers, apple butter, fruits, nuts, electricity, fires, hucksters, catalog shopping, relationship of farms/farmers and industry, logging, salves and liniments, mechanization, modernization, computerization, Williamsburg-PA, flies, insects, corn, Irish, potatoes, World War One (WWI), entertainment, mine mules.

Other subject matter includes Cambria County-PA, Welsh, Catholics, Protestants, Slavic groups, water, wells, springs, Ebensburg-PA, singing, brand names, butchering, family, Agway, grange, markets, Scotch-Irish, laundry, bathing, buttermilk, childcare, baking, eating out, radios, homes, farming organizations, injuries, deaths, veterinarians, sheep, ice cream, margarine, education, government inspection, artificial insemination, calves, veal, needlework, sewing, soap, wheat, oats, shirt factory, drying corn, healing, Westmoreland County-PA, Blair County-PA, railroad, steel mills, barns, coal mining, housework, holiday and other celebrations, games, play, hunting, blacksmithing, tanning, revivals, snakes, law practice, trapping, fairs, stores, shopping, state and local government.

Fieldworkers include Mason, Olson, Ware, Schmidt, Budde, Merrill and Shaffer. Note: Merrill changes identifying initials on tapes and tape logs; Shaffer includes multiple interviews on a single tape. Forms include: oral history questionnaire, interview description, interviewer log, interview log sheet, recording log, biography data sheet, release form. Fieldworkers also sometimes provide fieldnotes. Materials are arranged alphabetically by last name of interviewee.

Vernacular Architecture Collection

Collection contains information on vernacular architecture of Somerset County-PA including: construction, decoration, furnishings, homes, out buildings, barns, gardens, flowers, work, chores, people who lived in buildings, water sources, animals, chimneys, porches, privies, woods, wood for house fires, rooms, basements, attics, lights, electricity, lanes, roads, fruit trees, trees, fences, bedding, non-farming work, washing, food, heating, stoves, acreage, fulling mill, sugar camp, hired help, changes, family, acquisition of property, dining room, bedrooms, living room, pantry, building materials, heating, sawmill, still.

Other subjects include equipment, butchering, threshing, silo fillings, house keeping, planting, outdoor bake oven, coal mining and stripping, transportation, hunting, herbal teas, summer house, soap, nut trees, holidays, Depression, grist mill, discipline, town and country rivalry, hucksters and peddlers, moon shine, dinner bells, entertainment, patent medicines, home remedies, closets, ashes, burning lime, children's games, ethnicity, immigration, storing food, needlework, crops, Ascension Day lore, Somerset-PA, Pennsylvania Dutch, ice house, orphans, comforts and quilts, making lard, Polish, photographs, Lincoln Road, farming, milk inspection and regulation, language, Czechs, herbs, tramp.

This series contains audio cassette tapes of interviews made by fieldworkers and describing Series I, Subseries A.

Series II: Audio Tapes

Subseries B: Tapes from Folklife Division Administrative Files

This series contains a few audio cassettes collected by Kimiecik for her education projects.

Series II: Audio Tapes

Subseries C: Documentation Center Fieldwork Audio Tapes

This series contains audio cassette tapes of interviews made during fieldwork conducted by the documentation centers and described in Series I, Subseries C.

Series III: Color 35mm Slides

Subseries A: Folklife Division Fieldwork Slides

This series contains color slides made by fieldworkers and described in Series I, Subseries A.

Series III: Color 35mm Slides*Subseries B: Slides from Folklife Div. Administrative Files

This series contains a few slides found in the Folklife Division's administrative files.

Series III: Color 35mm Slides*Subseries C: Documentation Center Fieldwork Slides

This series has been set aside for slides taken during fieldwork by documentation centers; it does not currently contain any slides.

Series IV: Black/White Contact Sheets and Prints (Some Color Prints)*Subseries A: Folklife Div. Fieldwork Black/White Photographs

This series contains black/white photographs taken by Folklife Division fieldworkers. Most of these are in the form of contact or proof sheets on one or two pages. A few were printed, especially those made by Harris and Moore for photograph exhibits. Some fieldworkers mistakenly used color print film and these prints are also stored in this series. Descriptions or logs can be found for these in Series I, Subseries A.

Series IV: Black/White Contact Sheets and Prints (Some Color Prints)*Subseries B: Black/White Photographs from Folklife Division Administrative Files

This series contains a small number of black/white and color prints taken from Folklife Division administrative files including photographs used in the Division's programs at the National Folk Festival and photographs of such programs sent to the Division by others.

Series IV: Black/White Contact Sheets and Prints (Some Color Prints)*Subseries C: Black/White Photographs from Documentation Centers

This series contains a small number of photographs taken from the Coal Documentation Center files.
