Athletic Association.

BASEBALL is receiving much attention at Indiana this year. A fine athletic field, and a new grandstand last year, have had much to do with the increasing interest. The Normal team has crossed bats with some of the best nine of Western Pennsylvania. A glance at the score on another page will give the particulars.

Football, too, at another season of the year comes in for its share of popularity. Although Indiana does not hold the enviable position in this sport that she held in '92, yet we are proud to know that many of the best players of the big elevens in this part of the State received their first training on the Normal gridiron.

During the spring term and early fall bicycling and tennis find more devotees than any other branch of athletics. In fair weather the five courts of the Association are seldom vacant. The girls, especially, enjoy the courts, for it is the one place where they can meet the young men of the school and play love-game without having to render an account to the faculty. However, tennis is a healthful and enjoyable game and one which is always likely to be popular at Indiana with persons who enjoy moderate exercise in the open air.
The gymnasium is a winter and hot-weather institution. Here the body is trained and muscles exercised when the weather won't permit outdoor work. During the winter term regular drills in physical culture, under the direction of the et cetera teacher, are given to the young ladies, while the young men have regular gymnasium work under the direction of one of the professors.

Our interest in athletics does not lie so much in record breaking and in championship encounters as it does in keeping well. We believe in plenty of fresh air. In the campus there are twenty-three acres, while on every side there are miles of hills and woods, so that abundant opportunity is afforded everyone who comes here, for enjoying both the boundless wealth of nature and that priceless possession—good health.

The following are the officers of the Association: President, C. B. Robertson; Secretary, H. G. Cramall.
